The story of Daniel Boone

Daniel Boone was a man, yes a big man.

He always wore a coonskin cap and carried a rifle.

He had an eye like an eagle and tall as a mountain was he.

He was brave. He was fearless. He was a hunter.

One day, he was captured by Indians,

But he escaped.

He fought against the British in the Revolutionary War.

And later made peace with the Indians. He and the chief smoked the peace pipe and became friends.

When he was old he sat under a tree and people asked his advice. The tree is called "Boone's judgement tree".
